About the BVM/SBM

The goal of the BVM/SBM is to promote research and applications of microscopy in Belgium, and to encourage and support interactions between microscopists within Belgium and abroad. The Society started many years ago as an Electron Microscopy Society, but has expanded its field in recent years to include all fields of advanced microscopy, such as Scanning Probe Microscopy, Optical Microscopy, Confocal techniques, and Image Processing. The BVM/SBM is one of the few truly Belgian societies, and both Dutch and French are used; general communications often use English as the common academic language. The BVM/SBM currently has about 150 individual and group memberships from academia and industry.

The BVM/SBM organizes symposia, often together with sister organizations in neighboring countries. The BVM/SBM also provides travel grants to enable students to attend microscopy related conferences abroad. One recent achievement of the BVM/SBM was the organization, together with the University of Antwerp, of the 13th European Microscopy Congress in Antwerp (www.emc2004.be).

Corporate Membership

Commercial suppliers of microscopy equipment and related supplies can join the BVM/SBM as Corporate Members. In this way they support the activities of the Society. Additional benefits of corporate membership include:
